NARVAL VICTORY IS CLAIMED BY BRITISH

States That the German Losses Were Not Only Relatively, But Absolutely Greater Than the British

ACCOUNTS FOR A TOTAL OF 18 GERMAN SHIPS

Statement Places the German Losses as Two Battleships, Two Dreadnought Battle Cruisers, Two Light Cruisers, Nine Torpedo Boat Destroyers and a Submarine—Official List of Casualties Shows That Hardly a Single Line Officer Escaped From the British Cruisers Sunk in the Battle—Lord Berezford While Claiming a British Victory in the North Sea Engagement Admits That it Was Dearly Bought.

London, June 4, 10.45 p. m.—The British admiralty tonight issued a statement saying there was the strongest grounds for the belief that the British navy in the battle with the Germans off Jutland last week had accounted for a total of eighteen German men-of-war and that there was nothing to add or subtract from the original announcement of the British losses.

The statement gave the German losses as two battleships, two dreadnought battle cruisers, four light cruisers, nine torpedo boat destroyers and a submarine.

Pessimism in London Lessened.

The pessimism which prevailed as a result of the admiralty's original statement of losses which is now considered to have been needlessly candid and conservative in under-estimating the extent of the German losses as compared with those of Great Britain, has been greatly lessened by the latest statement.

Rumors Current in Hamburg.

A despatch from Copenhagen says rumors are current in Hamburg that two German warships besides those announced in the German communication—the battleship Westfalen and the battleship Schleswig-Holstein—were sunk in the battle. A wireless despatch received here Saturday from Berlin said the German admiralty admitted the loss of the Westfalen.

German Losses the Greater.

The admiralty statement tonight declares that the German losses in the fight were not only relatively, but absolutely greater than those of the British. Maintaining its practice of caution, the admiralty still refrains from giving the names of the lost German ships.

Hardly a Line Officer Escaped.

The official list of the casualties among officers shows that hardly a single officer of the line escaped from the British cruisers sunk in the battle. An additional casualty list of petty officers shows that forty-three of them were among the dead. Among the names were: Queen Mary, Invincible, Fortitude, and the battleship Marlborough. None were saved from the Invincible, Defence, Black Prince, Tiger, and the battleship Marlborough.

The list given the names of sixty-five men killed aboard the Warrior and of 27 men wounded. On other ships engaged in the fight, 115 men were killed and 85 wounded.

No Failure in British Strategy.

Admiral Lord Berezford in an interview today, while contending strongly for the view that the British strategy in the British strategy and that Vice Admiral Beatty won a brilliant success, though it was dearly bought, declares that the only mistake made was by the admiralty in allowing the Germans to get first in the field with the news of the battle. He says that, with "impaired fabrications," other wise, said Lord Berezford, no fault can be found with the admiralty.

BRITISH ADMIRALTY'S STATEMENT OF BATTLE

Claims German Accounts of the German Losses Are False.

London, June 4, 10.15 p. m.—A statement issued tonight by the British admiralty, confirming previous accounts of the battle of Jutland, says that the German losses were not only relatively, but absolutely greater than those of the British. The statement says that the German losses were not only relatively, but absolutely greater than those of the British.

Leading Ships in Vigorous Fight.

The grand fleet came in touch with the German high sea fleet at 8.30 on the afternoon of May 31. The leading ships of the two fleets made contact on a vigorous fight, in which the battleships, fast battleships and subsidiary craft all took an active part.

Losses Severe on Both Sides.

The losses were severe on both sides, but when the main body of the British fleet came into contact with the German high sea fleet a very brief period of time was sufficient to seek refuge in their protected waters. The maneuver was rendered possible by low visibility and mist and although the grand fleet were now and then able to get in momentary contact with their opponents, no continuous action was possible.

Pursued Until Light Faded.

The British continued the pursuit until the light had wholly faded, while the German destroyers were able to make a successful attack upon the enemy during the night.

JACOB H. SCHIFF TO WORK AS INDIVIDUAL

Has Broken Affiliation With What He Calls "Jewish Politics."

New York, June 4.—Jacob H. Schiff, known to Jews throughout the world for many years as one of the leaders of their race, appeared today before the annual convention of the Kehillah, or Jewish Community of New York, and pronounced a speech in which he "valued" his voice trembling with emotion, he told the delegates he had determined to break all affiliation with what he termed "Jewish politics" and hereafter to do his work for his race as a private individual.

Mr. Schiff said his appearance, which was unexpected, was due to his wish to set himself straight before the Jews of the city and country. He declared he had been bitterly attacked in the Jewish press because of the misquotation of his remarks at the Central Jewish Institute two weeks ago. At that time he deprecated the proposal that Yiddish be spoken by Jews in all public places. He said today he had declared this because he had been subjected to such attacks that he had regretted it. It has unfortunately come.

Mr. Schiff said he had expected an attack against him, because one had threatened to do so today at his own suggestion to the proposed American Jewish congress, but he added, that he felt he deserved better at the hands of his co-religionists after the work he had done for them.

Hughes the Man to Unite Parties

CONVICTION GROWS THAT ROOSEVELT WILL LOSE.

Leaders in the Dark

Among Those Who Hold the View That Roosevelt Will Not Be Nominated Are Many His Friends.

Chicago, June 4.—For some unknown reason there is a growing conviction among both republicans and progressive leaders assembled here for the national conventions that Colonel Roosevelt will not be nominated by the older party. Among those who would hold this view are many numbered among the colonel's closest friends who none the less are giving up the fight.

Hughes the Man.

The leaders who take this view of the situation seem to think that Justice Hughes is the man who could unite the republican and progressive parties together and present a solid front to the democratic opposition, even though they are not convinced the justice can win the nomination.

Leaders Are in the Dark.

The situation which this condition presents is unprecedented. None of the leaders on the ground profess to have any idea what will happen. It is notable that all the speculation so far has been in the dark.
